

The Wright Stuff

A Word from Bob Wright

Perhaps some of you will remember the following missive that I wrote back in 2014 and shared in this newsletter. I revisited this a short time ago and, for some reason, really liked it. Who knows why. I think I only got one negative comment on it back then. Let me know what you think. – Bob

Whenever I see a professional's name listed (associated with the medical industry), whether it is on a door, in a program as a speaker, as a participant in a clinical study or research project, etc., I often wonder what those many letters and abbreviations behind his or her name actually represent.

Of course, most of us know by now that “M.D.” is medical doctor, “N.D.” is naturopathic doctor, “D.C.” is a chiropractor, and “D.D.S.” is a dentist. People put a lot of stock in these initials and, to be fair, many of these doctors, dentists, and other medical workers have journeyed far and worked very hard to be able to use these acronyms. And, subsequently, they are awarded with the prestige that these titles represent.

Sometimes, however, these are taken a bit far and the reverence poured out upon this presumed deity is over the top. Again, I am not bashing good doctors and those in the medical and health and wellness fields that are trying their best to help those of us who really need it. May God Bless them. No, as far as I am concerned – use whatever initials you like that represent who you really are or, I guess, what medical science says you are. Go for it.

But what really puzzles me is when someone has spent a great deal of their life researching and studying (although, maybe not at an accredited institution) and has – beyond any doubt – become a true expert in their area of knowledge and understanding – and the purveyance of this expertise. Bill Henderson, Ty Bollinger, Webster Kehr, Mary Tocco, et al., huge names in the anti-cancer and anti-vaccination movement – have no initials behind their names, yet have probably done way more good over the past ten to twenty years than a whole boat-load of doctors and researchers. Sadly, they get no kudos, few thank yous and, often, are ostracized, persecuted, and prosecuted for their gall of telling people the truth and practicing what they preach. The nerve of these people – and may God Bless them, as well.

I get that a lot. Who are you Mr. Wright? You aren't a doctor. There are no letters behind your name. What right do you have to tell or advise people what they should do for their cancers? What do you know that doctors don't – especially since they spent hundreds of thousands of dollars and more than a decade to become the professionals that they are? Good questions – all. Most of you who have followed me, the AACI/IWARC, or any of these previously mentioned individuals, know the answers to those questions. The fact is that we are not confined to allopathic medicine and its “conventional” wisdom (wisdom???) to which only their diagnostic, surgical, and pharmaceutical knowledge and understanding are relevant or allowed.

You see, we really do know when these things are necessary and warranted. And, it's not 100% of the time. Truth be known – it's probably more like 10% of the time. This is not acknowledged within Western medicine because a lot of power and money disappear when people move to natural intervention (the healing mechanisms that God invented).

So, I have gone about the huge task (not really!) of rectifying this huge injustice. No longer will those of us who are truly steeped in the language of the natural healing arts be hounded for no initials, no acronyms, no string of letters behind our names. No way, Jose. I'm taking a stand, and I hope that all the others who are questioned and belittled for lack of degrees – and not lauded for their wisdom and understanding of what really works for sickness, disease, and wellness – will join me in this endeavor. At a minimum, it will cause a significant amount of “pause” to those who will want to be critical – but can't be because they have no clue about what those letters mean!

So, here is how I am going forward. Others, obviously, are free to choose their own. Although I hold a BS (no, it means Bachelor of Science) degree – I'm leaving that out. No one pays attention to that anyway. This is what it will look like from here on out:

Robert G. Wright, NDCS, GOH, POT

Wow, that will get everyone thinking! What on earth do those mean? Is NDCS a naturopathic doctor of cancer studies? No. Is a GOH a good 'ol human? No. And, what about that POT? Pretty obvious teacher? No.

NDCS = Non-Doctor of Common Sense

GOH = Giver of Hope

POT = Purveyor of Truth

Well, I like them. You may not. And, no one will really know unless they ask. That'll keep 'em guessing.

No, this is not an attempt to pass myself off as some kind of doctor. Most people I meet are delighted that I am not a doctor and understand that my methodologies are not limited and I can tell them what I believe to be the truth – no matter what.

Is this designed to have a little fun? You bet it is. And, this writing is now documented evidence that there is no harm intended and – if these “initials” prove to interfere with or duplicate some revered title that already exists, people will know that it was a purely unintended consequence. Just maybe, someone will come to hear the truth that they might not have heard because I lacked the credentials and they didn’t think it worth their while. Maybe a doctor or other health care worker will think that what I might have to say may be significant – since I now have all these letters behind my name. Perhaps they will get a heavy dose of “the other side” and start thinking about patient options.

Whatever the case, my only goal here is to further the message. If I am forced to “take these down” at some future date – so be it. My hope is that many will catch the wave of fun and ridiculousness that this represents and maybe, just maybe, someone, somewhere will be helped because of this. We shall see and time will tell.

Until then, I introduce you to my new self:
Robert G. Wright, NDCS, GOH, POT

Nice to meet you.

“Cancer Research/Treatments?”

Please invest just a little time in the following article by my friend, Dr. Alfredo Galvez, and the subsequent writing by Dr. Mukherjee on the never ending search for cancer treatments. Dr. Galvez is one of the world's premier geneticists and now works with the Reliv Company. He is the founder of the “lunasin” peptide about 20 years ago and it has proven to be a true “epigenetic” protein. Dr. Galvez speaks about epigenetic dysfunctions being the real causal factors for cancer – not genetic mutations. Also, read the comments below Dr. Mukherjee's piece – some are really good. This may well give you a better idea of what we are up against when it comes to forwarding the real effective treatments for cancer – and conducting research that really means something.

– Bob

From Dr. Alfredo Galvez:

“For more than five decades, cancer biomedical research and drug development have always operated based on the 'cancer is a genetic disease' paradigm.

In a cancer epigenetics meeting four years ago in Houston, I concluded my talk on nutritional epigenetics by stating that the underlying cause of cancer is the dysregulation of the epigenome and that nutrition may help mitigate epigenetic dysfunctions. The statement was considered sacrilegious by majority of the audience which was made painfully evident to me by the organizers of the meeting. I found it surprising that for an epigenetics conference, biomedical researchers are narrowly focusing only on hunting for gene mutations that cause epigenetic dysfunctions in cancer, without even taking into consideration that epigenetic dysfunctions are the causal factors allowing the formation of cancer driver mutations.

As in any biological revolutions, the tide is slowly turning. In this NY times op-ed piece, Dr. Mukherjee, the author of the Emperor of all Maladies: A Biography of Cancer, describes a vivid picture of the narrow mindset of cancer researchers as gene hunters and makes a compelling argument for expanding our collective efforts and viewpoints on personalized medicine beyond gene-based therapy to include epigenetics, the immune system and metabolic inputs.”

Thyroid Problems?

I have said for years now that the Halides, chlorine, fluoride, and bromine, sit on the iodine receptors in the thyroid gland and prevent the uptake of this valuable substance. We consume these through drinking tap water, taking showers with no water filter, using fluoridated toothpaste, and through virtually all commercial baked goods including bread. First of all, we need to stop the intake of these poisons. Yes, they are poisons. Then, we need to get on board with the minerals that support our thyroids and most of the rest of our epigenetic systems.

One of our favorite doctors, Dr. Carolyn Dean, is a true master of minerals. She has developed several products that will assist America (and the rest of the world) in becoming mineral efficient instead of deficient – which most of us are. Read the following to see what she says about the 9 different minerals that your thyroid requires. Then, do something about it. Thanks. Bob

Do You Know Which 9 Minerals Your Body Needs?

Your thyroid needs, craves, desires, can't-do-without at least nine minerals for proper function. Have I made myself clear? Do not leave home without these nine minerals if you want your thyroid to be Happy!

It was believed that iodine was the master mineral for the thyroid. But within the last several years it has become apparent, through research and anecdotal evidence, that there are multiple minerals involved with thyroid hormone production.

Here are 9 essential minerals to support the structure and function of the thyroid.

1. Iodine: T3 has 3 iodine molecules; T4 has 4. So it's safe to say that the thyroid can't function without iodine. T4 or (thyroxine) is 68 percent iodine by weight, and T3 (triiodothyronine) is 58 percent.

2. Selenium: A necessary cofactor in the production of thyroxine (T4), It also converts T4 to the more active form, T3. A total of 11 selenium-dependent enzymes have been identified as necessary for thyroid function and thyroid hormone production. If you take iodine, especially the high amounts of iodine that some doctors are recommending, without selenium, you can cause selenium deficiency and all the selenium deficiency side effects that are not that well known. If you take selenium without iodine, you can cause iodine deficiency.

3. Zinc: Required for the synthesis of thyroid hormones. Zinc deficiency, plain and simple, can result in hypothyroidism. Conversely, thyroid hormones are essential for the absorption of zinc. And here's a scary fact - the hair loss attributed to hypothyroidism may not improve with thyroid hormone replacement unless zinc supplements are added.

4. Molybdenum: Molybdenum-dependent enzymes function in the oxidative system of thyrocytes (thyroid epithelial cells). They also play an important role in T3 (thyroglobulin) release from the thyroid gland. Here's another interesting fact. Mo helps to break down yeast toxins and yeast gets a leg up when your temperature is low due to hypothyroidism.

5. Boron: Helps the conversion of the storage form of thyroid hormone, T4, to T3, the active form.

6. Copper: Plays an important role in the metabolism of the amino acid tyrosine, which is a precursor to T4 (thyroxine).

7. Chromium: Enhances insulin activity playing a major role in the regulation of insulin release and its effects on carbohydrate, protein and lipid metabolism. Conversion of T4 to T3 is influenced by insulin, so in a roundabout way, chromium helps this conversion.

8. Manganese: Required to transport the hormone thyroxine into our cells.

9. Magnesium: Calcium and magnesium must be balanced in the body to ensure proper thyroid function. If there is too much calcium, thyroid hormones can become diminished. Magnesium is the regulator of calcium absorption and utilization.

There is a dizzying array of these minerals available on the market. However, they are not all created equal. Choosing the right formula comes down to one factor: absorption.

The enhanced absorption of picometer minerals (due to their ionic size) makes them truly functional and therapeutic. Whereas dirt minerals may be 4-20% absorbed, picometer minerals reach 100% absorption. That is why I created the picometer ReMyte and ReMag formulas to have maximum absorption, so the molecules can penetrate into all the places in your body that they need to go.

Here are words of gratitude from a customer who is noticing the difference that our minerals are making in her health. “ReMyte has all the minerals you need for thyroid function. I’m getting myself on track!! Thank you Dr. Carolyn for all you do to help me stay healthy with your wonderful products and the wealth of relevant, concise, easy to understand information you share every day!”

“SUGAR – The White Death”

At the AACI/IWARC we call sugar “the white death.” There is a reason for that and I believe that most of you reading this know that reason. Of course, sugar feeds cancer – and about every other chronic illness and inflammatory episode we endure. It will lead you down the road to metabolic disease then full-blown diabetes. It will feed your candida and other fungal overgrowths and the parasites that live in all of us. Sugar and insulin are the harbingers of heart disease and atherosclerosis – not cholesterol. I could go on and on. Most people could end a variety of health problems just by quitting the consumption of this sweetener that will destroy your life over time. And it is found in virtually all packaged foods and fast foods today. It is hard to escape – but you can do it.

Read the three brief testimonials below from Vani Hari’s (The Food Babe) newsletter and the results achieved when sugar was terminated.

A group of us did a 7-Day Sugar Detox together last January... and here’s what happened...

“A full week minimum on this is such a great idea... I found it so much more effective than just trying to “cut back” on sweets, breads and dairy all of which have been staples for me for decades. They kept creeping back in on me. Even though 40 years vegetarian and also organic as much as possible, going without sugar, dairy and starches for even a week really made a difference in my clarity and endurance during the day. I feel much healthier, and my digestion stronger. Thank you! I would not have done so well at this without your guidelines.”

– Steve

“The recipes are so delicious. I am single with no children at home so I would like tips on cooking for one! But I can honestly say that my sugar cravings have all but disappeared. The food is so nutritious & tastes so good, I didn't crave sweets after meals. I also lost 6 pounds. Thanks so much for a great program. I will be continuing my new eating habits!”

– Lynn

“I had been wanting to do the sugar detox for a while as chocolate was ruling my life. I have been a Food Babe follower for over a year, but even organic chocolate has sugar in it! At 8 weeks postpartum, I decided to make a change not only for myself but also for my family. The sugar detox recipes were easy and so yummy! Today is my first day since completing the detox and I have had no desire to go back to my old eating habits. I had veggies for lunch and they were delicious and satisfying!”

– Lea

“CBD and Kannaway”

We keep getting testimonials about great results with Kannaway products. Check out this one:

“I have three clients that have cancer and are going through and/or are post chemo. Their blood cell counts are moving towards normal, they are no longer nauseous and weak. They are eating and sleeping well, and all say they are grateful for the CBD products from Kannaway. They also use the salve externally on the radiation tags implanted under their skin as well as the internal CBD.”

“TESTIMONY – Bio Band”

“Hi Bob! Tristin Rupp here- the gal who did the Facebook live video in the front row at your seminar in Kennewick, WA with Amanda Bobbett. I wanted to personally thank you again for sharing all your knowledge and wisdom with us and for allowing me to go live on that and share it. It's had over 300 shares and over 13,000 views so far just on Facebook. So wonderful!!

I ordered my own bio band and it just arrived today. I'm feeling better already. I knew I needed this product because I am on my phone A LOT. Thanks again! You're the best! Much appreciation for you!”
