

The Wright Stuff

A Word from Bob Wright

It's that time of year again. Yes, the time of year in which every non-profit on the planet (good or bad) embraces the deductibility of a portion of individual and corporate tax liability.

If the organization is a 501c3, generally the total of the “give” achieves deductible status. This appears to be a “win-win” for both giver and receiver and, in a sense it is. However, who really does the homework on the charities, what their work entails, and the success or failure rate of their endeavors? How many really seek to know where and how this money is spent? The answer is simply – not many.

We like to say that in many cases, these dollars simply are deposited into a huge, dark, sucking hole – never to be seen or heard from again. Sadly, it usually happens that way. Are you giving to Susan G. Komen this year? The American Cancer Society? While your heart is in the right place, perhaps your money could be better spent. With much of the budget going to overhead and the advancement of conventional medicine and drugs, these are a couple of organizations that I would avoid “at all cost.” And, before the breast cancer survivors skewer me for that remark, know that I know you are doing it for what you feel are all the right reasons. I challenge you to simply ask what your money is being used for. Nine times out of ten you will be told “cancer research.” C’mon, really?

I am here to tell you that the good ‘ol boy network of cancer researchers is delighted with your choice. Despite the fact that very little is ever accomplished that is of any consequence, they are understandably appreciative that you pay their salaries and keep them working. I for one am tired of it.

We don’t need much more drug and allopathic research. And, this new immunotherapy research (it’s not new) has already been done. We know how to stimulate the human immune system – the only thing that heals cancer – and we have virtually known it for millennia. Trying to activate the immune system with drugs is a non-starter for me – and it seldom works. But what the heck, cancer patients are so desperate that they allow themselves to become human guinea pigs (their thoughts – not mine) – so they will do anything. We just wish they would come and see us first.

You see, we have known since our inception that the immune system is the only thing that heals cancer – or any other sickness or disease. So, doesn’t it make sense to build it up rather than break it down? We use the natural solutions that do just that – not the chemicals and radiation that virtually destroy the only thing that can bring us to healing.

Think about it. Hundreds of millions of tax-deductible dollars will be given to non-profits in December – and a lot of it won't do any good at all – at least for those who really need some “good” in their lives. Unfortunately, the organizations doing the real work will see very little of that.

We, and a few other organizations, can point to almost unlimited success with what we do. When you use what God gave us to keep the body well – and heal it when it's not – one usually gets positive results. No, I am not going to shove any statistics down your throat, but I'll bet this makes sense to you, as well.

We are totally invested in, and “sold out” to, health and healing – and prevention. Our delight, and payment, comes from healed bodies – not more research (although we do that, too). I consult with cancer patients every day – for no payment. Gee, who does that anymore? This is not about me, though. It is simply about doing the right thing and telling people the truth. Truth is a mighty thing. When people embrace it they discover the real power behind it and it makes a visible difference in their lives.

So, we are about truth, hope, and leadership. We prescribe huge amounts of all of these – the only thing that we actually “prescribe” to patients. And, it changes people. Physically, mentally, emotionally, and spiritually.

I know that many wonder how we can do this at no charge. Well, we rely on you for that. Our foundation has been largely supported by sales of the book, “Killing Cancer – Not People.” I must report that sales have been reasonably good, allowing us to continue our work so far. It's not enough, however. In order to build on what we have accomplished, we need your further support. We ask that you consider us this month – whether or not you are seeking a tax-deduction. We are worthy, and always have been. We are an IRS-designated, 501c3, and your donations are always deductible.

Also, consider purchasing a copy or two (or a case) of our book – they make great Christmas presents. In order to facilitate getting this into more hands this holiday season, we are doing what may be our last (for a long while) 2 for 1 sale. Buy one book in December, get two; buy 2, get four; buy a case of 28, get a case free. By doing this you are spreading the word about what really works for cancer – and all sickness and disease, again – and what doesn't. You are also helping us to continue our work, the work that is only about helping people. Go to our website at www.americanaci.org and order right there. Your support is deeply appreciated. Blessings.

Lupus Testimonial

submitted by AACI/IWARC Ambassadors Jun Leung and John Lim

My Name: Pat Lau. 45 age,
Diagnosed: Lupus disease
Term: 10 years 2007-2017

Diagnostic background:

In the early September 2007, I have started the pain of hands and feet, knees, soles of feet, elbow, fingers, wrists, each joint constantly inflamed. I went to consult general doctor, the doctor just prescribed some anti-inflammatory drugs. In the beginnings, the panacea can control two to three days, but my sickness getting more serious each day until I have to take anti-inflammatory drugs daily with a higher dose. Then I began to realize it is not a common disease, so I went to consult other specialists. After six months, the final diagnosis of lupus disease.

I need to take steroids, anti-inflammatory drugs, arthritis medicine, calcium tablets and stomach medicine every day for lupus. I have taken the medicine to control the disease in eight years. However, the index of lupus erythematosus is stable. Although there is no slip and no improvement during this eight-year period, but I found that plantar fascia soft tissue was damaged by long-term use of steroids. I was unable to walk barefoot and wear shoes without insoles after this time and began to know that continuing to take steroids and other drugs would affect the rest of the body.

Remedy:

My first contact with the Kangen water was in November 2015, I went to Singapore to travel, I tried Kangen water in my friend's home and the Kangen water is sweet and good to drink. After I returned to Hong Kong, my Singaporean friend's sister Yainn provided me the details of Kangen water can improve the body condition. In January 2016, I began to drink 2-2.5 liters of pH9.5 Kangen water daily.

After 3 months of drinking Kangen water, I began to reduce my medication and it had been 6 months I did not take any steroid drugs. In January 2017, when I went to the hospital for follow-up, the report pointed out that the index of lupus erythematosus is still lower than that of the past eight years, only a little higher than that of normal people. The doctor take the initiative to refrain me from taking steroid drugs. Today, I have not taken any medicine at all. Even cold and flu have been significantly reduced. In the meantime, I only drink pH9.5 Kangen water and take lactic acid bacteria.

So I strongly recommend every family must have a SD501, it's not only make the body immunity stronger, but also regulate their own immune system for preventive of illnesses.

IMPORTANCE Although growing end follicular variant of papillary thyroid carcinoma is treated as having conventional thyroid cancer, it is a distinct entity with a more indolent course.

OBJECTIVE To evaluate clinical outcomes of end follicular variant of papillary thyroid carcinoma nomenclature that appropriately reflects its indolent nature.

DESIGN, SETTING, AND PARTICIPANTS A retrospective review of 100 patients with thyroid nodules diagnosed as end follicular variant of papillary thyroid carcinoma (EFVPTC) observed for 10 to 26 years and 18 years. Review of digitized histologic slides by 7 pathologists from 7 countries. A series of meetings were held to establish consensus diagnosis.

CONCLUSIONS End follicular variant of papillary thyroid carcinoma is a distinct entity with a more indolent course than conventional papillary thyroid carcinoma. The current nomenclature for end follicular variant of papillary thyroid carcinoma is misleading and should be revised to reflect its indolent nature.
