I confess to them that the answer is “no.” This catches the audience a little off-guard – as it probably does you right now. However, the reasons for this answer are sound and real. Here is the explanation – and it is two-fold.

Approximately 95% of people who come to us, whether in person, by phone, or through e-mail request, do so only after they have exhausted their allopathic (conventional medicine) options. This means that they have probably undergone one – or all three – of Western Medicine’s cancer therapies; surgery, chemotherapy, radiation therapy. We call them “cut, burn, and poison.” And, we don’t do this to be trite or antagonistic – we say it because it is true and statistics show that 97% of them will be dead within 5 years of diagnosis (see the December, 2004, issue of The Journal of Oncology).

Sadly, it is too late for many of them. Although we try to help anyway, these conventional interventions have severely compromised or destroyed their immune systems. There is no coming back from that. When we do try to help – regardless of the situation – we (or those organizations doing the same things we do) get blamed if the patient dies – even though we had no hand in it. Many do, in fact, die, as the poisons and radiation have virtually ascertained that, even though the patient has yet to be pronounced dead.

The second reason is a bit more subtle – yet equally disturbing. Many patients won’t do what is necessary to save their own lives. In some cases – I truly get it. They have been so over-treated, so drugged, so poisoned, so irradiated – and are now so very tired, debilitated and sick, that they can’t understand how anything else could possibly help them – now that the only doctor approved standard of care has failed them. They just want it to be over. Who could blame them?

How have we gotten here? When and why did we arrive at this place in modern medicine where the treatments are killing the patients faster than the disease itself? Interesting questions. Unfortunately, with ever-increasing tragic answers.

This brings me to the main point of this missive. You may have heard it before from me – but it bears repeating. What does it take to heal? Especially, with cancer. And, what are you willing to do? As a matter of basic fact, the answers herein are straightforward and simple to understand. But can you do it? Will you do it? My friend, Dave, could not. Armed with a protocol that was reversing his cancer (an all-natural regimen), Dave was getting better and better. It was difficult for him, however, all of this eating the right foods, drinking the right fluids, detoxing the body, taking the proper supplements. In the end, he decided that it was far easier to lay on a gurney or sit in a bed, have the chemo done for him, eat the foods he wanted, drink the soda pop, etc., and enter a state of comfort that would allow for his non-participation – so he could enjoy the time that his doctor said he had left. And, although I disagreed with his choice – it was, after all, his choice. Those of you who have read my book know Dave’s story. He did not last a third of the 18 months that his doctor promised if he followed the allopathic treatments. And, his quality of life deteriorated very rapidly.

The studies and statistics show us that those who do absolutely nothing with their cancers, live as long or longer than those who undergo standard treatments. And, they have a much better quality of life. Yet, cancer patients don’t know this, they are not told this, and would be told by modern medicine that it is not true.

Friends, to heal from cancer we must strengthen and normalize the human immune system. It’s the ONLY thing that works. There is no food, no supplement, no liquid, no therapy, no treatment, no protocol that, in and of itself, cures cancer. It simply does not work that way. Oh sure, we have heard of people who used one thing (I've heard of at least 400 of these) and their cancer was healed. It is hard to convince these people that the substance or therapy they used was not solely responsible for their healing. But, truth be told, it wasn't. Rather, it was the harbinger or agent that facilitated the change in the human terrain and, hence, the empowering of the immune system that really made the difference. You can argue with that all you want – and some do – but it is truth and that's how it works.

So, the real way that this happens is through a combination of factors and mediums (and derivatives thereof) that bring the body back to homeostasis (normal function). There are four major categories that we have talked about before: we need the right food (mostly, vegan and organic with cancer), the right fluids (especially the right water), detoxification (so important, yet so ignored), and the right supplementation (most patients can't get enough nutrients through food alone). Of course, we also need exercise when we are able.

There can be several different options within these individual categories – but they remain static. With these, we have much more than an even chance to survive – and thrive. You know, when followed closely, it works almost every time. Again, a patient must have an intact immune system for this to work and most do – but some don't.

I could go on and on. People don't really care about all of this conventional rig-a-ma-roll today. They just want to heal. And, if you haven't gotten this yet, we know how to do this and it works almost all of the time. Conventional medicine will look at what I have just said and say, "Prove it." Of course, the only proof I have is the tens of thousands of healed bodies who followed these or similar protocols (all natural) and are alive to talk about it. This proof is not good enough for allopathy.

They want clinical studies, double-blind, placebo controlled research. Obviously, we can't do that, nor would we. Knowing what really works, why would we go through a study where we had to give half of the participants something that didn't work? What happened to "first, do no harm?"

So, on we go. The worm is turning. We can now see the light at the end of the tunnel and are fairly certain it is not an oncoming train. We covet and sincerely appreciate your support – that support concerning the real truth about cancer – and all sickness and degenerative disease.

The Hidden Dangers of Mammograms That Every Woman Should Know About

From my friend, Sayer Ji, at GreenMedInfo.com, I forward the following. Again, steeped in science, the facts present themselves through published research and clinical studies that simply cannot be refuted.

Following is an excerpt from this article. Please go to Sayer's website, GreenMedinfo.com, for the rest of the story and a complete listing of all of the sources provided.

“Millions of women undergo them annually, but few are even remotely aware of just how many dangers they are exposing themselves to in the name of prevention, not the least of which are misdiagnosis, over diagnosis and the promotion of breast cancer itself.

*“Research of this kind (see the website for sources and additional information) clearly indicates that the conventional screening process carries health risks, both to body and mind, which may outstrip the very dangers the medical surveillance believes itself responsible for, and effective at, mitigating. For instance, according to a groundbreaking study published last November in New England Journal of Medicine, 1.3 million US women were over diagnosed and over treated over the past 30 years. These are the ‘false positives’ that were never caught, resulting in the unnecessary irradiation, chemotherapy poisoning and surgery of approximately 43,000 women each year. Now, when you add to this dismal statistic the millions of ‘false positives’ that, while being caught, nevertheless resulted in producing traumas within those* women, breast screening begins to look like a veritable nightmare of Iatrogenesis.”

Ladies, there is a lot more to this story that you need to know. Sayer Ji is one of the smartest guys I know – and he deals in pure medical science, not allopathic politics and hocus pocus. Hence, you always get the truth from him – not what is convenient and makes money.

I highly recommend that all women invest their breast health in thermography rather than mammography. It is far more accurate, non-touch, no pain (but there is gain), and is the epitome of early detection when it comes to breast cancer – or breast anomalies. That’s what I would do. ♦

The Flu and Our Children

Sadly, folks, we couldn’t make this stuff up – nor would we, ever. Tell me, how many of our children must die or be maimed by flu shots and vaccinations before we really get it? Why can’t we take the politics out of this and look at the science? Excuse me, I mean the real science.

I received the link below from my friend, Greg Albers, of Life Insurance Buyers, Inc. (LIBI), a short time ago with the comment, “What country do we live in?????????????”. Indeed, what country do we live in? Although I like the attorney in the video, Peter Johnson, Jr. of Fox News – and, although he did survive Hodgkin’s Lymphoma via allopathic measures – he is dead wrong on this issue. Intra-Abdominal Fat and Your Health

Did you know fat around the abdomen, commonly referred to as intra-abdominal fat, or visceral fat, surrounding the stomach, kidneys, liver, and intestines, is HIGHLY dangerous to overall health?

This visceral fat is linked to cardiovascular disease, diabetes, mental decline, hormone disruptions, and an overall increase in most illnesses and diseases. By implementing simple, affordable changes to overall lifestyle, such as better food choices, avoiding toxins, daily detox and exercise; visceral fat can be drastically reduced in a safe manner, at a steady pace. Adding six to eight servings of organic vegetables and fruits daily allows the body to hydrate, be nourished, feel satiated, and utilize vitamins and minerals necessary to stimulate the elimination of excess visceral fat.

*Jenevieve Fisher
Executive Director
Educate A Cure*

The soluble fiber in vegetables and fruits ferments inside the intestines; aiding in proper elimination of toxins released by the visceral fat, and replenishing the beneficial bacteria necessary to boost the immune system during detox. These fermented soluble fibers also enhance the body's ability to regulate blood glucose, and improve healthy cholesterol levels.

One simple tip is to eat vegetables and fruits with high amounts of soluble fibers, in order to reduce visceral fat. As always, choose organic. Try carrots, onions, broccoli, peas, barley, oats, legumes, and beans, fruits such as apples, bananas, pears are excellent sources of soluble fiber. Also, chew your food until it is liquid in your mouth, eat slowly and enjoy your food; eat until you are satisfied, NOT FULL, and nourish your body each day. ♦

Name Change/Address Change

As we continue to await trust funding, we are moving full-speed into our ongoing infra-structure development to optimize and support the ever increasing demands on our organization from cancer patients and all others seeking help for their sickness and disease.

Many of you know that we have been gradually changing our name from the American Anti-Cancer Institute to the International Wellness & Research Center. We will be intensifying that movement over the next 90 days or so as we endeavor to flex our “natural medicine muscles” with the self-realization that we have attained the knowledge, wisdom and understanding to help people with virtually all maladies known to man.

From cancer to heart disease, auto-immune to neurodegenerative disease – and, literally, all points in between, we now know there are solutions that exist outside of allopathic medicine to deal with all of the myriad of immune dysfunctions. Parkinson’s, Alzheimer’s, ALS, Type II diabetes, cancer, radiation poisoning, Agent Orange poisoning, arthritis, rheumatoid arthritis, fibromyalgia, lupus, migraines, etc. – we think you get the picture – we believe all can be ameliorated through natural, immune-enhancing protocols.

You’ll notice we didn’t say “cured” or “healed.” Sadly, only conventional medicine can use those words without fear of retribution.

So look for us to begin moving the American Anti-Cancer Institute name to the background and becoming known as the International Wellness & Research Center. The AACI name will always exist in that it is the holder of the 501©(3) non-profit designation. Our Federal EIN for tax-deduction purposes is 94-3442051.

Our new shipping and mailing address is:

AACI/IWARC
P. O. Box 13117
Everett, WA 98206, USA.

We anticipate that this will be temporary as we locate to another facility shortly. Our email address continues to be info@americanaci.org. Please contact us there with questions, concerns, comments, or with personal stories and testimonials. ♦

A financial service for using life insurance today™

For millions of people who are living with a serious illness such as cancer, heart disease, Alzheimer's or AIDS, the high cost of medical care can quickly deplete essential resources. The same is true for many people over the age of 75 who have complicating health factors. Just putting money aside for basic expenses such as groceries and mortgage payments can be a challenge. LIBI gives people a place to turn for additional resources. Through a financial service called a viatical settlement, we enable people to sell their current life insurance policies for a percentage of the total face value. The money people receive may be used for any purpose and, in most cases, is free of federal income tax obligations.

LIBI can help open the door to new possibilities—such as fewer financial worries, new options for medical care and additional resources to share with family and friends.
