

The Wright Stuff

A Word from Bob Wright

Since October is Breast Cancer Awareness Month, I thought I would give you the Foreword to my as yet unfinished new book, “The Pinkwashing of America – The Politics of Breast Cancer.” It’s short, but I think you will enjoy it. Please keep in mind it is copyrighted material.

“The Pinkwashing of America”

Introduction

“The disease is 90% preventable, mostly using completely free therapies. The breast cancer industry does not want women to be made aware of these free therapies because most of the better-known non-profits in the area of breast cancer are, themselves, dependent on revenues from the companies that profit from the disease.”

~ Mike Adams, The Health Ranger

They say that truth is stranger than fiction. I believe it. Seriously, I probably could not make this stuff up if I tried. What lies herein is a sad tale. And by tale – I don’t mean that this is a work of fiction. To the contrary, this story is an actual account of the history and facts surrounding the rise of breast cancer as a business in this country.

It is, in essence, an undertaking illustrating the power and greed of both corporate and non-profit America and the pain, grief, and agony that they have cooperatively produced and heaped on cancer sufferers and their families over the past 40 years.

It is a sorry testament to conventional medicine and its quest to maintain the status quo of cancer treatment that this book must be written at all. Surgery, chemotherapy, and radiation therapy remain the mainstay of a broken “sick-care” system that cannot produce a healing rate above three percent and – at the current pace – never will. New drugs are produced, gene and genome research continues, and cancer patients proceed to die at a relentless and alarming speed – second only to iatrocide (death by doctor).

Many believe the breast cancer industry is a scam pioneered and run by a “herd” of charlatans chasing the proverbial almighty dollar. This greed is accompanied by the quest for power – and power knows no bounds and takes no prisoners.

One in eight women today will be diagnosed with breast cancer. That is nearly triple the lifetime risk of the 1940’s which was one in twenty-two. The American Cancer Society reported that there were 192,370 new cases of invasive breast cancer in 2009 and 40,170 deaths. I believe their numbers are low. Statistics are juggled easily by those who have a vested interest in keeping the “war on cancer” in high gear. Nevertheless, far too many women are being diagnosed and 90% too many are succumbing to this disease.

Profiteering in disease is nothing new. Whole industries are built around chronic illness that should be cured instead of “controlled.” Heart disease, diabetes, arthritis – yes, all of these and more are being manufactured (think the food we eat, water we drink, environmental chemicals, etc.) and then the sickened patients are treated with surgery and drugs until they die. What a magnificent scheme. Make ‘em sick, treat ‘em till all their life energy and money is gone, then let ‘em die.

Enter the real hucksters. And these are those who would find a way to surround the situation (cancer), round up a posse of supposed “do-gooders,” lasso a plan that has the appearance of a win-win for all parties involved, then ride off into the sunset with everybody’s money – leaving a trail of dead bodies in their dust. Unfortunately, most of us are oblivious to the reality of this marketing blueprint and its predetermined outcome.

Undeniably, those trafficking and merchandising in the very commercial industry known as cancer, are literally making a killing – in more ways than one. More people acquire cancer today than ever before and, despite new drugs, new therapies, and the ever-present promise that the “cure” lies just around the corner, one of somebody’s family dies every minute in this country from this deficiency disease.

Make no mistake, cancer is big business. More people actually work in the cancer industry today than people who have cancer. And we know, beyond any doubt, that there is no shortage of cancer patients. In and of itself, breast cancer is a humongous business enterprise that stresses “early detection” by means of periodic (often every year or two) exams called mammograms that, through many studies, have been shown to cause the cancer that they project to prevent. If you don’t know by now, early detection – while always preferential to late detection – is not the answer. Prevention is. Combine that (prevention) with the treatments that actually work – the mislabeled “alternative” therapies – and the answer to breast cancer stares us right in the face.

Evidently, modern medicine is disinterested. Surgery, radical mastectomies, drugs, radiation, more drugs, more radiation, more surgery – then the eventual “sorry, there’s nothing more we can do” – precedes the predictable trip to the undertaker. Tell me, why do we continue to fall for this? Why do we let the politics of social acceptance and the conjured belief that our doctors and medical establishment can’t possibly be wrong get in the way of our healing?

America has been duped. The common, tax-paying citizen of this great land has been taken for the proverbial ride. We, who believe that our health care system is the best in the world (of course, it is far from it), have believed a lie and fallen victim to a monstrous “sick care” scheme that heals few and treats most “chronically” until they die. We have been served a heaping portion of political rhetoric professing that all conventional medicine is good and, therein, lies our only hope for health and healing. The deception continues as the pharmaceutical companies hijack the airways to promote their latest offerings that provide relief and healing for everything from hemorrhoids to cancer. Of course, that dish is served with a side order of disclaimers and “side effects” that usually “cause” or worsen the disorder they are supposed to treat.

I believe that most doctors are good-hearted, well-educated professionals who really want to heal their patients. Unfortunately, they have virtually no ability to accomplish this task. No, doctors do not cure people and neither do drugs. And, when it comes to breast cancer, many doctors not only get in the way – they systematically violate their oath to “first, do no harm.” Many M.D.’s that I personally know – or know of – will openly confess to the foregoing. Don’t infer from this that doctors are bad people. Quite the opposite, they are generally caring and concerning souls who simply lack the basic tools of the trade; and most don’t know it. They are trained well to do what they do; diagnose, treat symptoms with drugs, do surgery, etc., and then hope that the patient gets well. In many instances, with minor sickness or disease, the immune system responds, the patient heals, and the doctor is praised for his healing proclivity. In most major disease, the result is the opposite and, over time, the patient succumbs. Very sad – but very true.

Many breast cancer patients suffer immeasurably through multiple surgeries and round after round of chemotherapy and radiation. Some survive this poisonous, cell-killing, relentless onslaught by strengthening their immune systems and through a sheer will to live. What you are not told is that most breast cancer patients – with an accurately diagnosed condition of invasive cancer – do not survive because traditional treatment therapies and drugs do not work and, in many cases, kill the patient before the disease does!

Politics and pinkwashing – strange bedfellows that should not have any connection, whatsoever, to breast cancer. These two activities, cancers in and of themselves, permeate an industry and infect it with a malignancy that steals legitimacy from effective cancer prevention and treatment. As a result, research dollars are continually wasted, efficacious “alternative” therapies are discarded and maligned and, the ongoing process by which this is allowed to occur remains unchallenged. This, friends, is the prime definition of the cancer tragedy in America today.

Money and power, politics and pinkwashing. This proverbial and proven recipe for disaster continues to cost tens of thousands of American women their lives each year. And, the forecast is for more of the same. You simply cannot do the same things over and over again and expect different results.

Politics, money, power, pinkwashing. Women die.

What has become of us?

Since October is National Breast Cancer Awareness Month, let's see what Dr. V says about nutrition and breast cancer – specifically, zinc.

“Zinc and Breast Cancer”

We all know zinc as a go-to for when we get sick (along with vitamin C, of course). But do you know the reason why? Zinc is a heavy-duty immune system stimulator. And when it comes to Breast Cancer, it can be a super-protector as well.

Zinc is considered a trace mineral that is vital for immune system function, since it is needed to “activate” T cells . Zinc is also responsible for enzyme activation in the body as well as cell division and genetic communication. Zinc is also connected to brain and heart health as well and has the ability to balance blood sugar in diabetics. A 2003 study found that zinc supplementation improved BMI and triglyceride levels and can lower overall body weight without effecting blood sugar levels. According to a double-blind clinical trial by Wayne State University School of Medicine in Detroit, Michigan, participants experienced lower infections after 12 month of supplementation.

The good news is that there are many easy ways to get your zinc through eating whole foods. Some zinc-rich foods include eggs, beans, nuts, hormone-free, grass-fed beef and even organic dark chocolate. Of course, this essential mineral is also available in supplement form.

Zinc provides a treasure trove of both direct and indirect healing benefits for those on a journey with Breast Cancer. Indirectly, zinc can be your advocate on the Breath Health path through the way it can decrease oxidative stress in general. The Wayne State study found that increasing zinc levels can lower a substance called IGF-1 (insulin-like growth factor). High IGF-1 levels have long been associated with cancer risk.

Zinc has been shown to have a direct effect on cancer cells. In the above study, zinc supplementation turned off certain functions that can lead to cancer growth.

In addition, a recent (2017) study on esophageal cancer at University of Texas at Arlington found that zinc “significantly inhibit the proliferation of ... cancer cells.”

A large-scale cohort study sponsored by the Pomeranian Medical University in Poland found that those individuals with the highest concentration of zinc had the lowest risk of cancer, including Breast Cancer. The researchers also found that the highest risk of Breast Cancer were those who were low in zinc (and other nutrients) and who had the BRCA1 gene mutation.

Should You Supplement with Zinc?

The World Health Organization estimates that roughly one-third of the world’s population is deficient in zinc. Some individuals do have a genetic propensity towards zinc malabsorption. Keep in mind, though, that even if you do, the principles of epigenetics determines that most such dispositions need strong triggers for them to manifest. Stress, lack of exercise and a poor diet are the most common ones, and this definitely pertains to zinc deficiency and its many consequences.

In my opinion, zinc supplementation is a sound choice for creating vibrant breast health. It can be part of an overall protocol for possibly healing Breast Cancer naturally. The 7 Essentials System® Super Zinc supplement offers a chelated version of this important mineral by the leader in mineral technology, Albion Advanced Nutrition. Zinc can be the most effective when combined with B vitamins and other nutrients for super-synergistic results for your Healthy Breast path.

“Breast Cancer Awareness Month”

Yes, it is that time of year again. Bless all of you women (and some men) who have spent so much time and effort trying to support a “cure” for breast cancer. We know your hearts are in the right place and many of you have struggled with the disease itself or know someone who has fought hard – yet passed none-the-less.

The following is no slam on your effort and dedication. Rather, it reflects the continued failure of many organizations to produce anything that really makes a difference for the prevention and healing of breast cancer. And, as Breast Cancer Action often says, please “think before you pink.”

Dr. William Campbell Douglass, M.D., puts in his two cents worth here (his opinion is worth way more than the two cents, though!):

“Here’s what October smells like: burning leaves, pumpkin pie, and B.S. That’s because it’s Breast Cancer Awareness Month, which is practically a national holiday at this point. And if you don’t join the ‘in’ crowd and slap a pink ribbon on whatever you’re wearing, you’re treated like some kind of cold-blooded, breast-hating monster.

“But those pink ribbons don’t exist to cure disease or save lives – they represent a Big Pharma-funded effort to drive millions of women through a funnel of screenings for a disease many don’t even have, and treatments that most of them don’t even need. In fact, the supposed benefits of all those screenings and treatments are about as real as the Great Pumpkin – and the numbers prove it every time.

“Breast Cancer Awareness Month is now 28 years old (older now since he wrote this). In the 28 years since it was launched by AstraZeneca to help sell the company’s cancer drugs, it’s been a wild success – for AstraZeneca and anyone else who makes money off cancer screenings and treatments. But when it comes to saving lives and curing disease, it’s been a miserable failure. Up to 15 lives are ruined with unnecessary and deforming breast-chopping surgeries and poisonous radiation treatments for every life ‘saved.’ And even then, there’s no guarantee that the one life ‘saved’ was actually the result of early detection and brutal mainstream treatments – because plenty of them were actually CAUSED by the radioactive and tumor-bursting screenings in the first place.”

Please keep in mind that William Campbell Douglass is a Medical Doctor (M.D.).

Well said, Doc.

“Skin Cancer”

Since we continually get inquiries about basic skin cancers – usually basal cell carcinomas – I plan to continue offering the below information periodically so that all will know what really works for this condition. We have yet to see a case that has not been resolved utilizing this method. And it’s simple.

INSTRUCTIONS:

1. Go to Google.
2. Enter “Curaderm” or “BEC-5.”
3. Order it.
4. Use it per the instructions.
5. Watch the cancer go away.
6. Be healed.

I know this might be tough and hard to follow, but hang in there and stick with it and the results will come.

No insult on anyone’s intelligence was intended with the preceding. Just wanted to let everyone know how simple it is. E-mail me at info@americanaci.org if you have any further questions. Bob

“You Don’t Own Your Children”

It’s happened again. Just like it happens every day in our country. Another child, diagnosed with cancer, must be whisked away to another venue (read country) to avoid being “kidnapped” by the medical establishment and forced into chemotherapy, radiotherapy and drugs. You see, you don’t really own your own children – ever. Until they are 18, they are really wards of the state – the government and medical convention and their minions who feel they know what is best for your child. Of course, they don’t. But it makes no difference when you are told to produce your child on this date to the hospital to begin treatment, or they will come and get him/her. And they will.

We know of stories where at least seven local police and county sheriff’s vehicles have surrounded a home and demanded the child. Then arrested the parents. Think it can’t happen to you? Think again. It is against the law to heal cancer in our country today. Of course, chemo, radiation, and surgery don’t heal cancer. They actually have been proven to spread existing cancers and cause new ones. Those of us that use natural therapies (what God gave us to stay well and heal when we get sick) are regarded as heretics, conspiracy theorists, quacks, and the like. And yet, we really know what works for cancer and chronic disease. It’s a conundrum like no other.

Please read the short story below that just happened. I have been given authority by the parents to publish this letter. It’s time to build a ground swell of support for families who have a right and a total vested interest in saving the life of their own child. Hospitals, doctors, and the medical establishment have no stake in saving that child’s life. They will stick to the “standard of care” – whether the child lives or dies. And, most of them die.

Letter from the parents of a pediatric neuroblastoma patient, age 3 yrs 9 months, to the doctors at Valley Children’s Hospital in Madera, CA:

This letter is in response to insistent demands relayed by your staff that we deliver our toddler son to your facility to begin conventional chemotherapy by no later than Monday, September 24, 2018, which is today. Our house sitter was totally unnerved that you apparently sent police to our door last week.

As the parents, with the greatest stake in the child's survival, we respectfully decline. Our decision is based on extensive research and the determination that our son's form of malignancy has a grim prognosis and is almost invariably fatal if treated under the conventional standard of care. The side effects are cruel and destroy the quality of life, and the damage to his immune system would foreclose his survival prospects.

We wish to make it very plain that we are not neglecting this child. He is in fact receiving very aggressive treatment and is now 13 days into it, responding with Herxheimer reactions to the tumor lysis syndrome, but tolerating it very well. Cannabis oil controls bone pain better than opioids. It also boosts appetite as defense against cachexia, and prevents nausea and vomiting. Samuel's lab values, compared with postop, are holding steady and improving. We chose an integrative approach. We are administering some of what you prescribed and are cautiously optimistic.

This matter is not up for debate. We will not submit to intrusive interrogation. Legal counsel advises no dialog beyond this update. We are under no obligation to defend our judgment and informed decision on the best survival strategy for our son.

We are signatory to a non-disclosure agreement and not at liberty to divulge specific details of the intravenous chemotherapy treatment our son is receiving, other than to say it is two forms which combine in vivo and act synergistically against the malignancy.

This treatment readily penetrates bone marrow and invades the cerebrospinal fluid and crosses the meninges. That explains the efficacy against neuroblastoma and glioblastoma.

The doctors are adamantly opposed to any promotion of their protocols, except among those with a need to know. (The parents of a child who has been diagnosed with cancer.) They decline to collaborate with any US oncology group, especially one based in California.

We were able to connect with an online support network, whose mission is to educate families facing cancer about holistic, evidence-based non-toxic therapies. They equip and empower community groups led by local volunteers, meeting in 39 states and 8 countries around the world—including Mexico, where we have deep ancestral roots and a network of family support.

Our family consists of first, second and third generation American citizens of Hispanic heritage. We count a few doctors and lawyers among our close and extended family in Mexico. Their best medical and legal advice is for us to continue our son's treatment, until we receive a post treatment PET scan which evidences progress against the cancer. He will not be returned to California jurisdiction without that documentation.

The goal is to retard the progression of the cancer and ultimately arrest and reverse it into remission, in hopes of resolving it. But we have no illusions. We are painfully aware that with metastatic neuroblastoma, success is often measured in terms of extended survival time with good quality of life. The so-called "standard of care" cannot offer us any better prognosis, no matter how they spin the statistics.

As of right now, this small boy is not losing any hair nor any weight. The cannabis is ensuring a healthy appetite and controlling his pain. Side effects are thus far limited to occasional Herxheimer chills. His energy levels are up, and he is happily chasing lizards, not suffering miserable nausea and vomiting.

We thank all of you doctors formerly involved in Samuel's care, for providing diagnostic imaging, pathology analysis and surgical excision of the primary tumor. Lest the authorities are being fed further false statements alleging neglect, this is confirmation that we did indeed proceed with postop chemotherapy in a timely manner, we just did not opt for your recommended brand of it. We are exercising our parental prerogative to determine the safest and most effective cancer treatment protocols for our child.

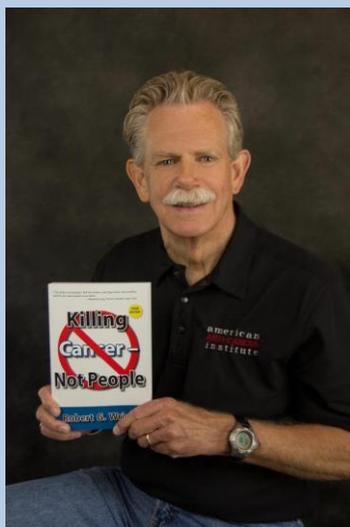

It is a sad disgrace to the conventional health care system that we had to depart our home in haste, literally making a midnight run for the border, in order to protect our toddler from all but certain death at the hands of well meaning but misguided officials.

Your staff's insistent demands that we surrender our son to toxic treatment (which is known to kill, often months before natural disease progression would have done so) was intolerable for us as parents.

Please regard this as notification that we have terminated Samuel's care with your practice, and will not be returning him to the jurisdiction without documentation proving his condition has improved.

Update

As you might understand, a firestorm began when the parents faxed this letter to the oncologists. The allopaths responded immediately as their older children were called out of class and interrogated by Child Protective Services. It appears that the State is threatening to seize custody of the healthy siblings and, perhaps, hold them hostage to force the return of the toddler who is receiving alternative (read natural) cancer treatment in Mexico. This child had the surgery but no other treatment before going south of the border. He had a late diagnosis and was already Stage 4. Certainly, oncologists today have no way to treat a late stage cancer patient where the cancer has metastasized. And no one can say if this child will survive for sure – regardless of the treatment – as it is late in the game. However, the child is responding well at this time after the first 13 days. As always, our hope is that he will heal. Time will tell.

“Truth – Leadership – Hope”

Throughout human history, accepted philosophical and scientific paradigms of the created world have changed over time, sometimes radically. The AACI believes that today's cancer paradigm as we know it is not accurate, and must undergo a radical, culture-wide change if the disease is going to be eradicated. “My Mom’s Journey with ReMag”

The world’s number one authority on magnesium and its value to the human body, Dr. Carolyn Dean, reveals a letter she received recently from one of her customers. It goes to show that some of the simplest things can help our health – and healing – dramatically. I use Dr. Dean’s ReMag, ReMyte, and ReMag lotion. You should too. Read on.

From Dr. Dean: Here is a story about how one of our customers helped her elderly mother saturate her body with magnesium and enjoy a richer quality of health:

“My mother celebrated her 91st birthday on September 18th.

For the most part my Mom is in good health but does suffer from rheumatoid arthritis throughout her body and osteoarthritis in her knees. She takes tramadol to manage her pain, methotrexate, calcium, multivitamin, vitamin D, Fosamax and some other cartilage supplements. She would add nothing to her regimen unless instructed by her rheumatologist. Yes, she holds doctors in a deified glory. But I understood. She had experienced immense pain at the onset of her arthritis and she did not want the pain to ever reach that level again.

After a couple of years of living with my RnA Drops exhalations her rheumatologist was surprised to see her inflammation markers decreasing with each blood test. She sees her doctor every three months and has her blood drawn at every visit. Soon after her doctor reported her diminishing inflammation she had a bone density test and again the doctor was very pleased, and surprised, that her bone density was very good. He took her off the Fosomax. My mother’s reaction to the doctor’s reports of getting better: “I don’t know why I’m getting better, I’m ready to go be with my husband.”

One of the side effects of her pain medication is constipation, anxiousness and difficulty sleeping. My mother was struggling with all three but, according to her, she was successfully managing her bouts of constipation well enough by drinking orange juice with lots of pulp. She would not recognize that the anxiousness and the difficulty sleeping were side effects of her medications. According to her, these issues were more a result of her life (and children) giving her so much to worry about.

I knew my mother could reap huge benefits from ReMag but she was steadfast in her refusal to even consider it. Then the ReMag lotion was introduced. In August 2017 I began replacing her hand lotion with ReMag lotion. She religiously applies lotion on her hands after washing them, so I knew she would get a pretty good daily dose of magnesium.

After three months I noticed the discoloration on her skin on her hands and arms was noticeably less. She had things like liver spots and also scars from scratches and burns from cooking and working in the yard. (She still mows the front and back lawns...more on this a little later...) Her skin is particularly sensitive to scratches, insect bites and burns make noticeable and sometimes scary marks on her skin that linger for a long time. Today her arms and hands now have an even skin tone color and a kind of warm glow.

I also began to notice that the knuckles on her hands and fingers seemed to be less. She had the noticeable disfigurement in her knuckles and fingers from the rheumatoid arthritis. Her thumbs were also almost 100% frozen. This was worrisome as she insists on doing all the cooking and losing the mobility in her thumbs put her at risk when handling cutting utensils and hot pots and pans.

Today my mother's hands look normal, her fingers have some bumps but are not disfigured. The knuckles on her hands are normal. Today she can bend her thumbs! And her blood test results showed her inflammation markers that had been trending down were no longer there! Her Rheumatologist was so surprised. She is also sleeping better and is calmer. Both my sisters have been taking the Completement Formulas for about a year so I let them in on the secret. They were so pleased but we still haven't told my Mom about the ReMag Lotion because we want her to continue to use it.

I suggested again that she try ReMag and reminded her how well I am doing with it and she also knows my sisters take it too. She finally agreed to try it!! I give her $\frac{3}{4}$ teaspoon in a glass of water each morning which she drinks throughout the day. She soon stopped complaining about her bowel movements. After about six weeks I pointed out to her that she hadn't mentioned having any issues with her bowels since she began taking the ReMag. She could do nothing but agree and I could tell from the look on her face that she was surprised and pleased.

She no longer makes a face when I give her morning glass of water. What she doesn't know is that I am now adding Pico Silver, Pink Himalayan sea salt to her water as well. She hasn't complained about taste or anything. My next challenge is to get her to drink more water throughout the day so I can increase the amounts I'm giving her.

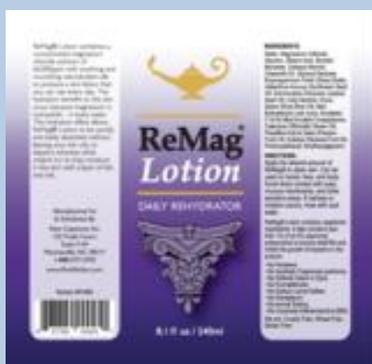

This year she began mowing the lawn again in the spring. She did it and she had the stamina to get the job done! In addition she didn't suffer any after effects – low energy, soreness, lethargy – that I saw her suffer with for a couple of days afterward from a year ago!

And lastly, her hair. It has been snow white for years now. For the last year we have noticed dark hairs growing in into her scalp. She now has some darker areas of hair and her hair is slowly turning into a more salt and pepper color. She likes to point out that her hair color is coming back and exclaims that she must be getting younger!!

It is amazing to see these results with my Mom and I am so grateful to have the Completement Formulas for her AND for me.” ~ Susana

“Thank You Letter to Bob”

Hello Bob,

I hope this beautiful fall evening finds you in best of spirits!

I wanted to thank you once again for your unexpected graciousness in sharing your knowledge and wisdom. I must tell you “Z” was so impressed with you in all ways, and likewise is extremely grateful for you taking time to discuss her condition and your best counsel.

She is doing incredible, driving herself now and walking outside, around her home and doing the rebounder for a few minutes a day. I would love to do a minute interview on her in a couple weeks, and testify the things she shifted, so we can have a live testimony of things following the suggestions per your book/you and Kangan water. Absolutely amazing!!

Jesus bless you and everything you put your hands to! You know as I was typing here, it came to me ...you are likened to me, as a male Mother Teresa Except you get to reach people much of the time before they are in hospice, in your guiding, educating, warning people revealing truth. I see in your eyes such compassion and conviction. It is such a significant work, and I only know a waft of what you do. I can imagine if you let it get to you, it would be overwhelming as the need is so great. Yet, as you did with my mother in law, there was a request and you answered and went. You really didn't have to. Who answers the call of a little old granny?? And without a financial cost?? A mighty man of God who walks and operates in his anointing. That's who does! He goes with confidence, humility and the absolute power of the Holy Ghost. A man who knows who he is and whose he is!

For that I am extremely grateful!!

Thank you Bob Wright, I am so honored to have met you.

SPONSOR HIGHLIGHT

A financial service for using life insurance today™

For millions of people who are living with a serious illness such as cancer, heart disease, Alzheimer's or AIDS, the high cost of medical care can quickly deplete essential resources. The same is true for many people over the age of 75 who have complicating health factors. Just putting money aside for basic expenses such as groceries and mortgage payments can be a challenge. LIBI gives people a place to turn for additional resources. Through a financial service called a viatical settlement, we enable people to sell their current life insurance policies for a percentage of the total face value. The money people receive may be used for any purpose and, in most cases, is free of federal income tax obligations.

LIBI can help open the door to new possibilities—such as fewer financial worries, new options for medical care and additional resources to share with family and friends.

All of us have our own sense of what's important, whether it's reaching a long-held goal, spending time with family and friends or enjoying the simple pleasures of each day.

WHAT WOULD THE AUTHOR, BOB WRIGHT, DO IF HE HAD CANCER? The "Wright Stuff," of course!

IN THIS BOOK:

- Read meticulously documented Truth about the AACI Cancer Paradigm and what it means for you and your family.
- Be amazed by doctors and medical professionals who know this Truth – some want you to know it, and some don't... Learn why.
- Learn what you absolutely must do and stop doing if you have cancer right now, and what you must do for cancer prevention.
- Understand detoxification and the cancer diet in plain English.
- Learn about the American Anti-Cancer Clinic: situated within a 100-acre plus cancer-healing complex in the Pacific Northwest, to which cancer victims can come from all over the world where all their needs will be met—medical, educational and nutritional, at less than one tenth the cost of current cancer care today. We believe that "if we build it, they will come!"
